• Manchester 2020 - Report on Operation Augusta [31]

European Convention of Human Rights- Issues with Sharia:

In Islamic family law, men have authority over women. Surah 4:34 states: 'Men have authority over women...While wives clearly have a duty of fidelity, husbands do not.'

In Sharia law, adultery is strictly prohibited. Legal doctrine holds that the evidences must take the form of corroborating testimony from four witnesses to prove an individual's guilt. Those witnesses must be men of good repute and good Muslims. The punishment is severe and degrading, namely 'a hundred lashes'. In the case of rape, which is seldom committed in public before four male witnesses who are good Muslims, punishing the rapist is difficult if not impossible. In practice, this obliges women to be accompanied by men when they go out and is not conducive to their independence.

While divorce by mutual consent is enshrined in Islamic law, the application has to come from the wife, since the husband can repudiate his wife at any time.

There is also the question of equal rights with regard to divorce arrangements.

For division of an estate among the heirs, distinctions are made according to the sex of the heir. A male heir has a double share, whereas a female heir has a single share. The rights of a surviving wife are half those of a surviving husband.

In criminal cases, cruel, inhuman and degrading punishments are authorised by Sharia law including: death by stoning, beheading and hanging, amputation of limbs and flogging.

Apostasy results, firstly, in the apostate's civil death, with the estate passing to the heirs, and, secondly, in the apostate's execution if he or she does not recant.

Lastly, non-Muslims do not have the same rights as Muslims in civil and criminal law, which is discrimination on the ground of religion within the meaning of Article 14 of the Convention.

Children are not the property of their parents.

They are individuals with rights and bodily integrity. And just because their parents believe in child veiling or FGM and male circumcision doesn't mean they should be automatically entitled to impose their views on their children, especially when these views are harmful.

It is not a question of choice

Religious symbols on children are not a child's choice but a parental imposition, as no child "chooses" to be "modest" and "chaste" and protect the family "honour."

Of course it doesn't help that police and media tend to forever be on the side of the Muslim rapists here in the UK. All of these agencies are prepared to lay sacrifices on the altar of multiculturalism. We think we live in a modern society, but these rapes and killings hearken back to the Aztecs and the blood sacrifices they offered to their Gods. Today the Gods that we offer up our sacrifices to are those Muslim men whose satanic impulses must be met and sated regardless the cost. In all these millennia, we haven't really travelled that far after all. We still tolerate a bloodlust, and those who swear oaths to protect us are high priests who assist with the procuring and killings. With the Muslim male gangs in our society, the devil truly does walk among us.
